Day-to-day Challenges

Benchmarking allows you to monitor your peers' progress and close the gap with the top-performers in your industry. However, most companies still rely heavily on manual processes to compile and conduct analysis.

Some companies, especially small and medium sized companies, do not possess a centralized ability to collect ESG data among different departments. Even for large conglomerates with diverse business interests, some of them struggle to centralize data collection across their entire portfolio.

In today's digital era, data is no longer scarce – companies of all shapes and sizes are overwhelmed by an unprecedented amount of data.

Manual data input is prone to errors, especially when working on complex and varied data sets from different departments or business lines within a company.
